town that the Government had agreed to article 2 of the new Reciprocity treaty thereby ceding Pearl river harbor to the United States. The facts, so far as we can learn are that the Hawaiian Government have communicated with the Secretary of State of the United States wishing to know what interpretation he puts upon that clause, and if his construction of the clause agrees with that of the Government here, they will accede to it, otherwise it will be rejected. The article in question reads: His Majesty the King of the Hawaiian Islands, grants to the Government of the United States, the exclusive right to enter the harbor of Pearl river, in the Island of Oahn, and to establish and maintain there a coaling and repair station, for the use of vessels of the United States, and to that end, the United States may improve the entrance of said harbor, and do all other things needful to the purpose aforesaid. As interpreted here this concession shall be made for only so long as the treaty remains in force. And when it expires by limitation or abrogation, all privileges accruing under it shall terminate. The construction the United States Government will put upon this article will decide whether or not any cession will be made.

ABOUT SUGAR.

A correspondent at San Francisco writes: Sugar has gone down one-eighth cent, and the market is very much weaker all over the world. The Planter arrived on the 20th and gets the benefit of the reduction.

COL. SPRECKELS AND BEET SUGAR, The following interview with Col. Spreckels appeared in the New York "Herald," September 16th, being of sufficient importance to be cabled. London, September 15, 1887 .-At the Victoria hotel this morning just before his taking the train for Southampton to join the Saale for New York the "Herald" correspondent said "Bon voyage" to Mr.

Spreckels, known in Europe as the California Sugar King, a well-preserved man with snowy hair. "I can give the 'Herald' no news on Hawaiian affairs," he said. "Rather it can give them to me. I left the United States last May and have been on the continent engaged ever since with sugar problems." "Will you tell the 'Herald' about them?"

"With pleasure, but I am sorry to have little time in which to talk. My travel in Europe has been anything but pleasuring.

"It was only hard work from morning till night. I found Germany at present the greatest beetsugar country the world ever saw. There is some marvelous machinery used for making beet sugar. I have bought 250,000 marks worth of the principal parts of the machinery in Cologne and Prague, for the purpose of establishing a beet-sugar factory in California, but the minor parts of the machinery I can get made in the United States. "I am convinced that beet-sugar making with my new machinery will create one of the greatest industries the United States ever had. I shall never rest until I have made the United States the greatest beet sugar producer, manufacturer and market in the world."

"What, better than the Conti-

"Yes, above Germany and France, though it is true that at the present time Germany exports 600,000 tons of beet sugar annually and consumes herself another 400,000 tons. If it were not for growing sugar beets the German farmers would go to the wall as certain as the English farmers have done already.

"Many practical farmers whom I met in Germany told me if it were not for beet-growing they would suffer. All seemed to feel that their country could not compete with the United States if we adopted their new machinery."

"How about France?" "Oh; I found the factories there far behind those in Germany. I nothing helps me like a glass of did not see the slightest improvement worth adopting, but I am every twenty-four hours, which will produce about 40 tons of sugar per day. The exact spot for its location I have not yet settled, but will do so as soon as I get back home. "I have also bought twenty-five tons of beet seed, which will leave Germany in December for New York, and then go by rail to San Francisco. But [taking out his watch | time wanes and the train soon leaves. When will what I have said be published in the 'Herald.' The day after to-morrow?"

"No; it will be cabled to-night and the New Yorkers will read it before you are out of sight of the English coast,'

Mr. Spreckels accepted a fresh 'Bon voyage," looking much pleased at such rapidity in news gather-

THE HONOLULU UPRISING. New York, Sept. 12.-The 'Times' prints a letter from a private gentleman living in Honolulu giving an account of the recent happenings there. It says that preparations for the revolution began in a definite way some nine months ago. A secret organization was formed; men were sworn in, arms were imported and distributed, plans were formulated and projects were canvassed. The great trouble at first was to get men of means interested in the cause. They all with one accord began to excuse themselves; one man had bought land, another had married a wife, etc. It was the old story over again. Beside that, it was nothing less than treason. We were plotting a plan that was to overthrow the Government, take possession and declare a Republic; nothing less. It was a rather t.cklish business. When there were only a baker's dozen-of us meeting after dark in holes and garrets, there were not wanting those to throw cold water, or those who wanted to draw back. It was said there was not strength enough to carry the thing through. Some who, knowing the plan, and who in their hearts must have approved of its object, withheld their support perhaps from faint-heartedness. Finally, courage was screwed up to the sticking point. Every member of the league, who was capable of bearing arms, was expected to, and actually provided himself, or was provided, with a good Springfield or other rifle, a bayonet, suitable accounterments and at least one hundred rounds of ammunition. A perfeet understanding was brought about between the league and the Honolulu Rifles. All the officers of the Rifles and many of the men in the ranks of the same were members of the league. The correspondent also says that up to June 30th it had not entered into our matured plans that the King would yield and thus save his crown, so that our Constitution-making had been planned on a republican basisr It is also alleged that there was serious thoughts of giving Gibson a taste of lynch law, and a rope was actually

THE AMERICAN FLAG AT SAMOA. Washington, Sept. 12, 1887.— The statement is telegraphed from San Francisco that ex-Consul Greenbaum to the Samoan Islands had declared that if the policy pursued by him in defying the German fleet two years ago to dethroned King Malietoa had been followed by the present United States Consuls the recent "coup d'etat" in that island, which give the German Empire practical possession there, would not have occurred. Some of the officials of the State Department who are familiar with the matter say that Mr. Greenbaum's statement is correct. Unfortunately for Greenbaum, however, the State Department did not indorse his action in the matter, and he was accordingly, by Mr. Bayard's orders, soon afterward removed. The late First Assistant Secretary of State, Mr. Porter, always held the opinion that Mr. Greenbaum had done precisely what he ought to do in the premises, but Mr. Bayard insisted that he had exceed his authority. It is well known by the friends of Mr. Greenbaum that his present successor, Mr. Harold Sewell, of Maine, was independent enough while spending a few days in Washington prior to his departure to Samos, to say that Mr. Greenbaum had shown true American pluck in what he had done, and that he (Mr. Sewell) would do likewise under similar circumstances. The remark coming to Secretary Bayard's ear resulted in the withholding of Mr. Sewell's commission until he had been properly discipline and made to understand Mr. Bayard's wishes upon this and kindred subjects of an international nature.

Coroner-"Your brother, I hear, has drowned himself in the river.' Uncle Jo-"Yes, I 'spec he has. Been mighty low spirited lately.' "Describe him so that the body may be identified if found." "Dat's easy 'nuff. He was deaf and dumb sence he was bo'n."-Texas Shift-
